Description
convertwiki should also convert (retain) the internal wiki-links, otherwise the converted wiki data is of little use

History

the possibility to convert wiki's was tailor made for the documentation workgroup because they had already started documenting in a wiki because the handbook application didn't exist yet.

Queer, I used their documentation wiki as a test :-) yes it imports the texts, not the links because the links in a wiki have nothing in common with the links in a handbook. implementing code to import the links would take a lot more time.

What I meant was that I don't know if the "import wiki" feature is interesting in other cases, it was created for this specific need to avoid too much double work but it is not a real feature of the handbook-app.

I am not going to implement/extend it anyway. anybody else with too much free time is welcome to do so :-)
