Description

I thought I had already added this, but apparently not :-)

There might be a way to make presentations (learning paths) in Chamilo really rock by including impress.js as a visualization (make a simple spiral formulae and put the slides in there) and adding it as one of the modes the teacher can select in lp_list.php.

Doesn't require database changes, just the inclusion of the impress.js library and a simple algorithm to make each page rotate a bit...

Also, this is at another level but it might work as well (not sure if impress.js uses SVG):

I did a fast and simple implementation (just to view the slides) using impress.js

Go to the classic view and change in the URL action=view to action=impress

It really looks fantastic (a bit pixelized because of the resize of documents that are not slides to start with, but really great anyway):

Well, I have to add an option to the LP table because when using impress.js we don't have progress, item pre-requisites, etc etc.

I'm going to add an exit() to stop the code, maybe for 1.9.1 we can focus in that task.

The LP setting could be lp.display_type or display_mode ??

There is already one field for that (which is matched to a small view type icon in the lp_list.php view), called default_view_mod, so no need to add anything but an additional accepted value.

The new icon should be something like a recycle circle or a round arrow (like with a "jumping" meaning) and it should say "Impress mode - No tracking in this mode" (so we are clear).

I also thought that but the "default_view_mod" has 2 options "embed" and "embedframe" and has nothing to do with the "format" that the lp is going to be shown. I mean that embed doesn't share the same category with "impress".

What happened if someone whats a full screen LP with impress?

In fact yes, it is a switcher between different visual modes, and yes, this is the one that should be used to pass to "impress" mode.

What other type of presentation do you want to offer them? Fullscreen should be triggered by pressing F11 in your browser, otherwise, as you said, we cannot use (at this time) the left bar with the impress mode, so there is only one possibility for the impress view: full browser page (so only one icon).

The idea with the visualisation botton (frame/embedframe) is that you can select whether the left bar will be show or not, but there is also a disabled visualisation mode which makes it popup if I remember well.

So here you just add one mode and we're done. Users will have to click twice on the icon to get to the impress mode, but we'll document that.

We don't have much time to spend making it much better, and it will not be tested enough to make it more visible in the stable release. It is a "beta" feature and will remain as such for now (it was not planned initially), unless somebody wants to spend a lot of personal time doing so ;-)

Julio, if you get a chance before Friday, I don't mind you looking into this to officially launch it as one more visualization. You just have to add it to the cycle of visualizations with a new (or existing, but different) icon in the list of LPs

Nice. I need three fixes/improvements to close it:

- leave the top bar in this mode as well
- give an id to the switch_view_mode action, so that when reloading the page (F5 or pressing "back" button), it doesn't change mode without saying it
- for some reason, when pressing "back" from the learning path in impress mode, I'm getting to the learning path as student...

Checked and confirm. This feature is great!

Erm, just to bring this up for others:

how do we now use the "impress" feature in learning paths/views?

Adding url parameters can't be the right way :P

And i have been looking in the 1.9.6 stable for this functionality.

Any clues? :-)

You have to click in the icon like 2 two times, a new option will appear:

111 / Learning paths Learner View

Click here to see the impress option.
