Description

I've update Chamilo from 1.8.4 to 1.9.

In the previous version I was able to add a navigation item in the top-menu by editing home/home_tabs.html and home_tabs_dutch.html.

In 1.9 this is ignored.

Is there a way to do this?

Kind regards

Stijn Michels

It works for me, edit the home_tabs_[you_language].html file

I added a new link called "Chamilo Forum" in our test server see:

Are you using multiple URLs?

I've placed this code in both home_tabs -files.

It doesn't seem to work

<li>Website CVO 3 Hofsteden</li>
<li>Personeel</li>

I have also set chamilo to English and it doesn't work either.

It's the /main/home_tabs.html and /main/home_tabs_dutch.html ?

I think there is a major problem with the dutch language because a lot of items are not translated in Chamilo 1.9

Can you try moving the files in a new folder called 'localhost'?

home/localhost/home_tabs_english.html

Are you using multiple URLs?

As far as I know I don't use multiple URL's.

Chamilo is installed in a folder called 'chamilo' on the webserver.

I've also made a home_tabs_english.html in the home and home/localhost and set Chamilo to English. Nothing changes.

This bug is kind of weird, did you check your apache logs?

In Administration tab >Portal>Edit portal homepage>Add a LINK

I have deleted the links and added new ones... now it works...

It could be a problem with file permissions, closing the task because it seems to be fixed, feel free to reopen
